

A lateral chest X-ray showing the thoracic cavity. The lungs appear hyperinflated, with increased radiolucency and flattened diaphragms. The mediastinal structures are visible, and there is evidence of lymphadenopathy, particularly in the lower lung fields. Two green rectangular boxes highlight specific areas: one in the upper lung field labeled 'Lymphadenopathy' and another in the lower lung field labeled 'Hyperinflation'.

Lymphadenopathy

Hyperinflation